It is inevitable to say that prosperity level of every country is vastly evaluated through the activity of women. Majority of population in society consist of the female that are widely involved in social and political field which is relevant on enhancing democratic process and strengthening civil society. As the Second President of the Republic of Uzbekistan Shavkat Mirziyoyev said: “-In our country, 45 percent of workers and employees in various spheres of life consists of female gender. About 1.4 thousands women are leading governmental and public organizations, 17 of them are the members of senate, 16 of them are deputies of Supreme Assembly Legislative Chamber and about 1.8 thousands women are members of the Local Council of Public Deputy. This data reflects that the participation of women in political processes is still less than by contrast of men.

The result of women’s laxity in social and political process field is due to:

- Busyness of women with their family, children’s upbringing and house duties when it comes to conventional and functional duty of society;
- Lack of experience on the strategy of political prerogative;
- Insufficient propagation of political career opportunities;

- Predominance of underestimation on leadership capability of female specialists;
- Unpopularity or absence of cooperation between men and women;
- Facing the difficulties on obtaining necessary data for agitation before elections;

- Minority of women in government organizations.

By analyzing the participation of women in political processes on international extent, it is clear that on average it consisted of 14% women elected for a membership in world parliament according to the data of 2000 and this number increased for 22.5% in 2015. For instance, there are 14% percent of people elected as a state representative are female and in general, 70.6% of women work in governmental organizations at all.

In fact, the first Ministers’ Cabinet was founded in Sweden in 1995 where the amount of men and women were equal. In recent decades, the quantity of female that is involved in governmental organizations increased from 3.4% in 1987 up to 6.8% in 1995.

It is obvious that the number of women that participate in government issues of the Republic of Kazakhstan are increasing, which means there are 3 chairwomen in Senate, 28 of them are the members of Majlis and 26.1% of all women are deputies. 36.4% of them stand for Supreme Court of the Republic of Kazakhstan, as well as there are 13 ministers in government and 2 of them consist of women. Nevertheless, 11% of them work for general government of the state.

In Turkmenistan, the country which is located near-by to our country pays great attention to support mother – child health & safety issues, increase prestige and position of female on governing the state and society, as well as to provide equality of gender regarding to international law norms on national legislation. Principally, in national parliament of Turkmenistan 3/1 of members are female, more than 44% of them are businesswomen in economical field and 47% of them work in organizations that do not belong to a country.

It is worth mentioning that, Grant Thornton International Organization (deals with auditory services of private and public companies) defined that in Russia, 42% of those who own proprietary are women. Consequently, in Philippines there are higher amount of women (47%) who work as a manager, by the contrast of USA with 20% and Japan has a lower rate (7%) cause of distrust to women in business management, as well as Belgium has 12% and Denmark stands for 13% rate. Despite there are differences in underestimation of payments for the effort of women, it is undeniable to mention that in Germany, as one of the developed country in Europe, women work as a chancellor through many years. It shows that the involvement of women on state leadership and system of executive authority around the world is divided variously.

All of those opinions which has been mentioned above reflects that attitude towards women is superseding radically in worldwide. Active participation of women on inner and outer political issues, safety and economic development of country on a full basis is becoming a simple occasion nowadays. In modern society, the progress and prestige of every country is assessed according to the support and involvement of women on political processes of that country.

By analyzing and testing social inquiries on different issues among the women of Uzbekistan, “IjtimoiyFikr” - social opinion research center of the Republic promulgated that social significance of politics on women provided by the state has shown its priority. Particularly, there was a research on the theme: “the women of Uzbekistan – 2017: social prestige and pleasance” which has revealed the importance of female on family and society, their social support, legal advocacy, volition, their opinions and comments on current issues. This inquiry included the attendance of 1100 women living in different parts of the republic and working in state and non-state organizations, as well as businesswomen, farmers, pensioners, housewives and students. According to the consequence of the inquiry, 88.4 % of respondents stated that nowadays the women of Uzbekistan are actively participating on the development of country and society, moreover, their importance has significantly increased in recent decades. More than 60% of participants expected that the authority of women would enhance on the development of state and society in upcoming future. Especially, huge incentive of working in political and social organizations of participants who are under 30 indicates that the intention of presence on state leadership among youth is strengthening greatly. Indeed, 70.2% of respondents deduced that there are sufficient privileges for women to fortify their socio-political activity and half of those participants assessed that the current activeness of women on socio-political issues is moderate. It is worth mentioning that the strategy for enhancing the involvement of women on governing the state and society is widely supported by them, as well as they favorably bolstered the expansion of women working in delegacies, executive authorities and local government organizations.

Uzbekistan, young country which is becoming a part of world community, has its strategy that supports women not to tardily accept the impact of social scope around but to accept it actively, feel free to become a part of society, upbringing healthy children and becoming a real political subject on forming a new future.

Liveliness of women as a leader can be revealed in different socio-political spheres of society, including legislative, executive, forensic authority system, political parties, leadership of women in economic sphere as a businesswoman and those who lead cultural and moral institutions. In addition, it is inevitable to say that woman who takes on leadership should also have personal characteristics like spirituality, perfection, devotion, persuasion and patriotism. As the President Sh. Mirziyoev said: “There would be no quality advantage in state leadership unless there is a system of selecting and elaborating freely-thinking, creative, liable, initiative, progressive, patriotic and honest personnel".
By analyzing the participation of women in socio-political processes, there was a diligence that revealed in the following spheres. Principally, in 2016, 62.1% leaders in high branches of healthcare ministry and 606 members of 38,023 women had a leadership position in a new system. In addition, 71.3% members in the ministry of local education, 35% of principals in secondary schools, 47% of principal coadjutors, 89.5% of teachers in primary education, 64.4% of secondary education and 100% of supervisors in nursery education entities consisted of women.

Totally, 16,942 leaders from 37,546 members, which are equal to 44.6%, are the women who lead primary organizations of the Professional Union Federation of Uzbekistan.

To sum up, it is worth mentioning that the period of disseminating the market economy was an unavoidable process with difficulties that affected to existence level of women, as well as to their involvement in social and political life. Notably, in this period there was an actuation in society on religious, conventional and reborn outlook concerned with the process of self-recognition. This process had vastly negative effect on social activity of women. However, personal characteristics of Uzbek women like industriousness, patriotism, valiancy and creativity became the reason of aspiration for reaching their own prestige in society. As a result of accomplishing democratic reforms, new opportunities that were created for revealing and fulfilling the concernment of women, remained as an important function of forming themselves into active individuals, rather than being an object of social protection, in other words, necessary duty for modifying their prestige in society.

By summarizing all view-points that was mentioned above, it is worth suggesting the following objectives for enhancing socio-political involvement of women, including:
