Abstract: This article explains not only the importance of Uzbek, but also other languages, in the life of young people.

Keywords: Turkish, Persian, Westminster, Tajik, Behbudi, Presidential works.

Language is the wealth and priceless property of the nation, the language is a great caravan that connects the past, present and future of the people. The lifestyle, customs and culture of each nation are reflected in its language. 'The language is a mirror of the nation.'

The great poet A. Navoi said: 'Losing the national language, losing the spirit of the nation'. Indeed, the importance of the language and its existence undoubtedly determine the progress of any nation. Especially in today's globalization where the lives of the peoples of the world have become commonplace, the words quoted above are doubled. Currently, the importance of not only Uzbek, but also world languages is increasing. But before learning a foreign language, we must learn and understand the native language. As the first President Islam Karimov said, "All the good qualities are absorbed in the human heart, first and foremost, with the unique beauty of the mother tongue. Mother tongue is the spirit of this nation. Any nation that loses its language is inevitable." We can see once again the importance of languages in our lifestyle.

As our ancestors said - "if anybody know a language, the people know nation" Institutions and branches of world-renowned universities are established in Uzbekistan in cooperation with many foreign countries. For example, Akfa, Wesministr, Inha and so on. Certainly, to pass entrance examinations at such institutes and universities, we must know not only our native language, but also our foreign languages. The fact that President Shavkat Mirziyoyev has created great conditions for young people to learn different languages can be seen in their widespread policies. There is also a boarding school and a kindergarten in the English, Russian and other languages. The salaries of teachers and coaches began to be paid. It is not an exaggeration to say that in recent years, many applicants have received CEFR or IELTS certification and have taken advantage of the opportunities offered in entrance exams. Opening of Korean, Turkish and Arabic language learning centers in rural areas. The translation and publication of books in other languages is, of course, due to the high attention of the Uzbek youth to the language.

The importance of language is emphasized by our writers. For example, we could read Behbudi's article, "Not Four, but Four Languages." It says: "We have to know Turkic, Persian, Arabic, and Russian. The reason Turk is Uzbek is that the majority of Turkestan people speak Uzbek. Persian is the language of mosque and udaba. Until today, Persian schools and prose books were taught in old and new schools in all parts of Turkestan. Although all the madrassa teach Shari'a and religious books are Arabic, the editions of the teachers are Persian. This rule, that is, the textbook - Arabic, teacher - Turkish, interpretation and translation is a strange thing. Three languages have been used in Turkestan since ancient time.

For example, as we know from the old labels, the orders and congratulations of the old emirs and khans in Turkestan have always been written in Turkish, and at the same time, editorial writers of the Daru al-literature. It follows that the views of our great ancestor M.Behbudi are a pressing issue not only for that time, but also for the present. There are several reasons for the growing demand for language learning today;

First, if we want to see our country as one of the most developed countries, of course, we also need to be in constant contact with highly developed countries. For this, communication in their language is essential.

Secondly, it is well known from history that the whole world recognizes that our ancestors shook the world with their reason. Their contribution to world science is invaluable. To be worthy of our ancestors are both duty and din for us

In today's 21st century information technology and globalization, all information and information is provided in English and Russian. That is why we pay a great deal of attention to young people to learn the language and to grasp its meaning. As an example, it is important not only the native language, but also the foreign language, for English language classes from first through eleventh grade to renew their thinking and broaden their outlook. When learning a foreign language, it is important to think like those in addition to the basic elements of the language (SPEAKING, LISTENING, READING, WRITING).

We also need to know languages to prepare children for their future careers. There are eight friends who speak a language and four friends who don't speak a language.

The conclusion is that we should never stop learning languages. We also need to know languages to understand the world and the culture of other nations. In particular, the use of unlimited opportunities provided to young people under the leadership of our President means we have to respond to the expectations of young people in the future
